Thursday was the big day as parents and youngsters headed for Oxford Furnance Wayside and a picnic lunch and then the exciting ride east from Lynchburg to the Appomattox depot, arriving at 12:55. The dome car was empty, reports Mrs. Cole, and all the children rode up there to enjoy the scenery. The train ride and outing is a yearly occasion for the kindergarten.

White Cane Day

Virginia Governor Linwood Holton has named Saturday, April 18, as White Cane Day in the Commonwealth. In his proclamation, Gov. Holton pointed out that some 12,000 members of Lions Clubs in Virginia will mark that day by seeking the help of their fellow citizens in their sight-conservating and sight-restoration work through the sale of miniature White Canes -- the international symbol of the blind.

The small, lapel-size white canes will be offered by Lions members in every Virginia community -- on street corners and in shopping centers -- on April 18 in return for a contribution, in any amount, to their sight-conservation fund.

The funds so collected will be used exclusively for Lions sight-saving and sight-restoration work. In most cases, the individual Lions Clubs will earmark half of the funds collected for local cases in which money is not available from any other source. The remainder will be channeled to the Old Dominion Eye Bank which makes possible sight-restoring corneal transplant operations, without charge to all those who need such operations and cannot afford them. The eye bank also solicits donations of human eye tissue through eye donor pledges. Eye-donation pledges can be made by contacting any member of a local Lions Club or by writing directly to Old Dominion Eye Bank, 408 North 12th Street, Richmond, Va. 23219.

FHA Encourages Subdivisions

More subdivision housing in small towns may be a better possibility under a new Farmers Home Administration (FHA) "conditional commitment program."

Mr. R. A. Goodling, Virginia's State Director for Farmers Home Administration, stated the new program could make the building of a dozen modest home in an area practical.

Previously, the FHA could finance the building of new homes only on the basis of a single unit at a time.

The new conditional commitment does not reserve funds for a loan nor does it provide for construction financing.

But, to experienced builders, the FHA will issue a commitment that, if the homes meet FHA requirements and if funds are available, the agency would be willing to make loans to qualified applicants who may want to buy the homes.

According to Mr. Goodling, the program is designed to encourage the construction industry to engage in a stepped-up program to upgrade low and modest cost housing in rural communities.

The FHA will issue a commitment on each proposed house effective for 12 months and limited to 15 commitments per builder at any one time.

An individual, partnership or corporation engaged in construction or rehabilitation and sale of homes may apply for a conditional commitment through the nearest office of the FHA.

The builder must have plans to build or rehabilitate homes that will be acceptable for purchase by families who qualify for rural housing loans through FHA, although the houses may also be sold to families who obtain financing elsewhere.
